The trustees have worked earnestly for the week, and at midnight last night they were still wrestling with questions for the advancement of the college interests. They announced that $55,000 had been added to the college working capital since the beginning of the present scholastic year, and from this showing they felt encouraged to reach out for the half million dollar endowment fund.

There are no changes of consequence in any department of the college work, and the coming year is expected to bring even greater results than the past year.
