

LUCY COBB'S FIRST HONOR GIRLS

Miss Lucy Bryan

Miss Lucy Leah West

Miss Mildred Mell.

Miss Mildred Mell, of Athens, Ga., is the valedictorian first honor graduate of Lucy Cobb Institute, in the full classical course. Miss Mell has spent all her school life at Lucy Cobb, and reflects the highest honor upon her alma mater. Her work has been of a high order of excellence in the studies demanding originality and strength of thought, and all her work has been marked by accuracy and enthusiasm. Those familiar with her work in the school of English are anticipating a valedictory address of great culture and forcefulness. Her work in mathematics has been especially fine, showing an analytical mind of high order. Miss Mell will probably continue her studies at Wellesley next fall, and will enter on a Lucy Cobb certificate without examination. Miss Mildred Mell is the youngest daughter of Mr. George A. Mell, and her mother was the brilliant and gifted Bes-sis Ruthertford Mell, so beloved in Athens for her noble public works, and admired for her culture and parliamentary ability. She is the niece of Miss Mildred Ruthertford and Mrs. M. A. Lipcomb, and sustains the fame of this family for scholarship and intellectual strength, as well as for great loveliness of character.

The two young ladies who share the first honor of Lucy Cobb Institute in the graduating class with Miss Mildred Metcalf are Miss Lucy Leah West and Miss Lucy Bryan, of Athens. Miss Lucy Leah West has made a splendid record in her classical studies and in higher English, where her talent as a writer is most marked. She has also been one of the most advanced and gifted members of the oratory department, taking at this commencement the leading parts in "As You Like It," and in the English original play, presented by the departments of English and oratory. Miss Lucy Bryan has not only won first honor in the senior class, and made a name for a high grade of scholarship and broad culture, but she has shown most remarkable executive ability in her position as editor-in-chief of the Lucy Cobb magazine, and her strong articles contributed to it have been valuable. Her work has been of a finish and elegance most marked.

The second honor graduates are Miss Katie May Arnold, of Lexington, Ga., who has made a very high average for the year, and Miss LaTrelle Hutton, of Savannah, whose record for scholarship is a splendid one. The leader of the English section is Miss Roberta Slade, of Columbus, who ranks high in all departments of study of this course. The elective class is led by Miss Flo Rene Watts, of Senola, and Miss Irene Ingram, of Atlanta, with very high averages.
