RECORD CLASSES READY TO RECEIVE DIPLOMAS IN SCHOOLS OF ATLANTA

Tech Sets College Pace With 300—Tech High Leads in City System With 260 to Graduate

With the approach of June, widespread interest centers in the Atlanta universities, colleges and schools that will hold commencement exercises during the first week of the month, when approximately 5,000 young men, young women and children will receive diplomas.

Of the total number to be graduated, Georgia Tech leads the higher institutions of learning, with a class of 200, while Emory leads the universities with 179 graduates. Both institutions have the largest senior classes in their histories. Commencement exercises for Oglethorpe University were held May 21, when 41 seniors were presented with sheepskins.

Agnes Scott, the only female college in the near proximity of Atlanta, graduated 30 young women last Tuesday. This also was a record number of graduates for that school.

Of the four principal high schools of the city—Tech High, Boys' High, Girls' High and Commercial High—Tech High leads with 260 graduating

The class of 1924, when about 265 were graduated, was the largest in the history of that school. Boys' High school announces that about 100 will receive diplomas this year. In 1924, the graduating class numbered 80, which is the former record at that school, Professor H. O. Smith stated.

170 At Commercial High

Commercial, the only co-educational high school in the city, will graduate 170, and Miss Jessie Muse, principal of Girls High school, announced Saturday that about 225 young ladies will be graduated from that institution. This, likewise, is believed to be a record number of graduates.

Principals of the four junior high schools of Atlanta, Hoke Smith, William A. Bass, Joseph E. Brown and Daniel C. O'Keefe, announced Saturday that approximately 1,500 students will be graduated from these schools.

Forty-three elementary schools announced Saturday through their superintendents that about 2,000 children will complete the grades with the close of the current school year and that a majority of this number plan to enroll in the various junior high schools next fall.

In addition to the various schools conducted under the city system, the PARIS, May 30.—Modistes' bills, jewelry accounts and kindred other claims on the treasury are beginning to mark the words "heavyweight stamping" and "Demsey, 5 rue de la Paix."

It was a rainy Saturday, just before the coming of the Easter storm. The clouds were low and the rain fell in a steady drizzle. The streets were wet and the air was heavy. The people were dressed in their best, and the children were running and playing in the streets. The music of the band was heard in the distance, and the people were dancing and singing. The night was beautiful and the people were happy.

Asked what he was doing and how fair Paree impressed him, he replied he wasn't having much time for night living.

The bills, it developed, were running up on the Rue de la Paix and the Rue Royale, the two main shopping streets.

MORTGAGE BONDS ON HURT BUILDING SET DIXIE RECORD

Issue Totaling $4,500,000

Placed by Atlanta Office of Miller & Co.

The largest mortgage bond issue in the history of southern real estate has been placed upon the Hurt building by G. L. Miller & Co., Atlanta real estate mortgage bond house. The total amount of the issue is $4,500,000.

In making the announcement of the bond issue Saturday, officials of the Miller company stated that the amount exceeds by $1,000,000 any similar bond issue on southern buildings and is a million and a half more than the previous record on an Atlanta building, the Biltmore hotel, which was handled by three different financial institutions.

Another interesting feature of the transaction is it is pointed out, lies in the fact that the bonds are issued on a completed building, which was acquired an immediate cash payment of the sums involved. In this respect, the financing operation falls with a fair dozen of the largest real estate financing deals in the United States.

Not only is the home issue pre-eminent in its field, but the two-building house's southern reputation as size as a commercial office building and its sale to banks and firms in the mid-1960s are among the prime indications of its success.

More than half a million dollars per floor space placed in a single separate office, the houses can take up to 5000 persons during their working hours.

DOMESTIC BANKERS TO OPEN WAR ON INHERITANCE TAX

Abandonment of the federal inheritance tax is to be one of the important topics of discussion at the ninth annual convention of the Georgia Country Bankers' association, to be held June 17, at Savannah.

L. R. Adams, secretary of the association, has announced that the program is taking shape rapidly, and that the proposal to abolish the inheritance tax is a paramount objective. It is expected that the governors of several states, with United States senators and congressmen, will participate in the discussion.

Among the topics to be discussed by various speakers are subjects related to cotton culture and marketing, country bank service, tobacco culture and marketing, boll weevil control and agricultural matters.

Governor Clifford Walker has been invited to address the bank, and is expected to accept, according to Mr. Adams.

A feature of the convention will be the entertainment program, which is being prepared by a special committee, and which will include several formal and informal affairs.

In the inner high school district, where the present buildings there are 24, there are 100 rooms with a seating capacity of 1,200, an average of 30 and in temporary buildings 105 rooms, with seating capacity of 1,260, an average of 30. There were 111 in attendance in these schools, according to figures given us, a total of 5,345 pupils. These figures include 24 rooms now being used for a part of Hoke Smith Junior High school, which must be used next year by Commercial High.

The senior high schools have 107 class rooms in permanent buildings, with a capacity of 3,210, an average of 30 and 10 rooms, with a capacity of 300, in temporary buildings. The attendance in senior high schools was 2,354, an average of 23. per room. The promotions in June into senior high schools in excess of graduations will be absorbed without additional teachers, thus operating to lower the per pupil cost in senior high schools

Booker Washington colored high school has 28 rooms in permanent building, with a capacity of 1,120, and rooms in temporary buildings, with seating capacity of 495, a total seating capacity of 1,615. Attendance at enrollment was 1,712.

"Colored elementary schools have total seating capacity in permanent buildings of 5,673, and in temporary buildings of 950, or a total of 6,623. Enrollment is 10,005 in permanent and 2,054 in temporary buildings, a total of 12,059. Single, double and triple sessions are held to meet the needs of the community.

New Buildings

"Should the growth of the city continue as it has for a number of years past, seats in the schools must be provided, beginning early in 1926, approximately 2,400 additional children annually. Applying the present ratio of school attendance to the general population, the increase estimated would indicate a population of Atlanta in 1933 of about 325,000. I believe this is a conservative

Temporary buildings now being used are of such a character that it will be necessary to replace them during the next few years, probably within five to seven years. This means that within seven years as a maximum it will be necessary to erect permanent school buildings to immigrate about 30,000 children. Engelhard and Strayer in their survey in 1922 estimated costs of new schools at $300, $400 and $500 a pupil for elementary, junior high and senior high schools respectively. These estimates provide for an auditorium in each school. Costs of elementary schools built with funds in bond issue run from $205 to $300, without an auditorium, but they include heating plants large enough to care for additional schools to be built later, and in some cases, foundations for such addi-
