I James Douge (planter) of the county of Currituck, being sick of body, but of sound of memory, knowing that it is appointed once for all men to die, do devise my worldly estate as follows. Viz. Impiumis. I give unto my son Jesse Douge the plantation whereon I now live, containing one hundred and six or seventy acres, to him and his heirs forever. Impiumis. I give unto my two daughters Elizabeth and Elvira the plantation whereon Ryland Faushey now lives to them and their heirs forever.

I then I give to my dearly beloved wife, one negro woman and like one negro man called Sam, during her widowhood, likewise I give to her one horse called Morgan, three cows and calves one yoke of steers and cart, to and her heirs forever. Likewise I give to her my sorel mare called Morgan to her, and her heirs forever. —

My desire is for all the rest of my estate to be equally divided between my two daughters, after my debt is paid.

I do appoint Samuel Douge, Peter Barnard whole and sole executor of this my will and Testament. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal, this 19. the day of January, one thousand eight hundred ten.
