S. E. CALLENDER IS VICTIM PNEUMONIA

WELL KNOWN FORMER PRESIDENT OF THIS CITY CALLED BY DEATH.
 Da. 3-10-17

S. E. Callender died at his home in Sumner county on Sunday night at 5:30 o'clock as a result of an attack of pneumonia. He was taken sick on Christmas day and steadily grew worse. The news of Mr. Callender's death will be a severe shock to a large number of friends in this county. For many years Mr. Callender was engaged here in the wholesale produce business being associated with R. S. McCarty. A few years ago Mr. Callender moved back to Sumner county, his old home and engaged in farming in which he was most successful being a large grower of live stock. While in Columbia he took a very lively interest in politics and was one of the delegates to the progressive convention at Chicago in 1912 that nominated Theodore Roosevelt for president of the United States. He was an ardent and uncompromising believer in a high protective tariff.

Mr. Callender was a member of the Presbyterian church, was a splendid neighbor, a progressive citizen and an honorable business man. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Dunn of Sumner county and one daughter, Elizabeth.

Wherry of Nashville, and their granddaughters, Elizabeth Callender and Miss Annan, daughter of the Methodist church in Hendersonville, and the ceremony.

SAMUEL EWING CALLENDER

On Sunday, December 30, 1917, at 5:30 p. m., at his home near Hendersonville, Tenn., Samuel Ewing Callender, in the 71st year of his age.
 This announcement will bring sorrow to wide circle of devoted friends. It falls with special heaviness on the congregation of the Hendersonville Presbyterian church in which he was a faithful and efficient ruling elder. Mr. Callender was one of those strong yet gentle characters that take a leading part in affairs and also wins the love and confidence of those who know him. He inherited the traditions of a godly ancestry. His people came from Pennsylvania, where his grandfather was a minister of the Dutch Reformed Church. His father, where his grandfather was a minister of the Dutch Reformed Church. His father, where his grandfather was a minister of the Dutch Reformed Church.
 The boy was trained according to the highest Christian ideals, and when of age he entered in a business life. At Columbia, Tenn., in Nashville, and on his fine farm in Sumner county, he made a success of his business. With energy, intelligence and industry, he gave all his powers to whatever he undertook. He was a man of warm heart and tender sympathies, of bright and cheerful temperament, which made him friends in social life; his integrity and perfect fairness won the friendship of his business associates.
 He was very charitable and kind, and gave liberally, but without ostentation, to relieve the needs of the poor and suffering. He was generous in his gifts to the benevolent causes of his church.
 He was a man of strong convictions, which he stated with perfect frankness and clearness and he had the courage to defend them. While he was a conservative, holding the old truths, he was not intolerant of the honest convictions of others. His religion was the crowning excellence of his character, and dominated all of his activities. His was the "old time religion," an absolute trust in Jesus Christ as his personal Saviour, and in humble walk with God in his daily life. He strove to live the fourteenth chapter of I Corinthians day by day. His religion was cheerful and bright. The joy of the Lord was his strength, and everything giving thanks to God for His manifold mercies.
 More than twenty-three years ago he was married to Miss Pauline Dunn, who with their one little daughter, Elizabeth survives him. It was in his family, as husband and father, in his beautiful and hospitable home, that the most attractive features of his character were manifested. It was an ideal Christian home, always open to friends and neighbors. Those dearest ones, who knew him best, were constant witnesses to his goodness.
 He was planning a trip to Florida with his family when he was suddenly attacked by the fatal sickness, pneumonia, and in five days he fell on sleep to awake in that "land where everlasting spring abides and never withering flowers." There he awaits the loved ones left behind for a season. May our loving Father, heaven, strengthen and comfort them until the day dawn and the shadows flee away.
 James H. McNeill.

Golden Wedding 2-13-1924

An interesting event of the week was the celebration of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dickson Dunn at their beautiful country home, Ash Crest, near Hendersonville, Saturday night, the hours being from 7 to 11 o'clock.

For the occasion the reception rooms were attractively decorated with stands of ferns and cut flowers, many of the latter being gifts from friends. A number of handsome gifts in remembrance of the fiftieth milestone reached in the married life of Mr. and Mrs. Dunn came from relatives and near friends.

Nearly 400 invitations were sent out and a large company was in attendance to extend felicitations to the bride and groom of half a century. A number of relatives and friends from Nashville were present and others came from distant places.

Special interest centered in the ceremony which recalled that of fifty years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Dunn stood under an archway of vines and flowers, from which was suspended a white wedding bell. They were attended by the two daughters, Mrs. Ewing Callender of Hendersonville, and Mrs. Harry S. Wherry of Nashville, and their granddaughters, Miss Elizabeth Callender and Miss Augusta Wherry. The Rev. T. A. Matthews, pastor of the Methodist church in Hendersonville, said the ceremony.

Prior to the ceremony a beautiful musical program was rendered by Miss Callender, Miss Wherry, Mr. J. A. Kirkpatrick and Mr. Dan Montgomery. Miss Callender sang "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," and "Silver Threads Among the Gold," with Miss Wherry at the piano. Mr. Kirkpatrick was violinist and Mr. Montgomery played the guitar, the latter being boyhood friends of the groom. Miss Wherry also rendered "My Old Kentucky Home," in remembrance of the native place of the bride, Mrs. Dunn having been Miss Martha Elizabeth Talbot of Kentucky before her marriage to Mr. Dunn.

Assisting in welcoming the guest were: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wherry, Misses Sallie and Mammie Dunn, nieces of the groom; Mrs. Cecil of Philadelphia, aunt of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Dunn of Atlanta and Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Johnson of Campbellsville, Kentucky.

Ices were served late in the evening and they were moulded in designs that suggested the golden wedding idea while the decorations of the cakes bore a similar motif.

It was a matter of interest that Mr. and Mrs. Black Dunn, also of Hendersonville and the former the only brother of the "groom," celebrated their golden wedding anniversary eight years ago and were present to extend their felicitations and to share in the auspicious occasion.

Mrs. T. D. Tyson of Nashville, the groom's only sister, was also among the special guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunn have made their home in Hendersonville since their marriage and are known and beloved throughout the entire community. Up to a few years ago, when they went to Ash Crest, on the Gallatin road, to reside, they had lived at the ancestral home of Mr. Dunn.

Mr. and Mrs. John Swaney, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Reed, Mrs. Richard Horn, Miss Annie Brandon, Mrs. Fannie Puryear and J. T. Baskerville were at Hendersonville Saturday night to attend the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. D. Dunn.

SAMUEL EWING CALLENDER DIES SUNDAY

Resident Citizen of Hendersonville Succumbs To Pneumonia.

Samuel Ewing Callender, a prominent citizen of the Hendersonville community and well known throughout the county, died at his home near Hendersonville Saturday afternoon. His death resulted from an attack of pneumonia with which he was stricken on Christmas day. He was 58 years of age and was born and reared in the county in which he lived a few years at Hendersonville but returned to Sumner county five years ago. Mr. Callender was one of Hendersonville's most prominent and highly esteemed citizens, taking an active part in all the affairs that related to the upbuilding of the community. He was a member of the Hendersonville Presbyterian church and a liberal contributor to various civic institutions and charities of his section.

He was a successful farmer, became owner and manager of "The Crest," which was one of the beautiful places in that section. He was married several years ago to Miss Pauline Dunn of Hendersonville, and she and their child, Elizabeth, survive.

The burial was in the family vault at the Hendersonville Presbyterian church at noon Saturday. Funeral services were conducted by Dr. J. H. McNeill and Rev. T. B. Fisher.

SAMUEL EWING CALLENDER.

The death of Samuel Ewing Callender, which occurred at his home near Hendersonville, Tenn., on Sunday, Dec. 30, 1917, brings sorrow to a multitude of friends, especially in Tennessee and Virginia. When stricken by the fatal disease he was planning a trip with his family to Florida. In a very few days he had passed into the land where everlasting spring abides and never-withering flowers.

The death of such a man leaves a sad void in the social, religious, business life of the community; for he was one of those strong characters who take an active part in the interests and well-being of their fellowmen. He inherited the high ideals and fine character of a noble ancestry. His father and mother were cultivated, refined Christians, who settled in Tennessee from Pennsylvania and were prominently identified with the higher educational interests of the state for many years. Their son, Samuel Ewing, was born at Franklin, Tenn., April 17, 1859. When he grew up he entered business, and for many years he was a successful business man in Columbia, Tenn. Afterwards his interests were transferred to Nashville, and he also cultivated his splendid farm in Sumner county, Tenn. He was successful in whatever he undertook, because he felt that anything worth doing was worth doing well; and so he gave his best powers to it and he was a man of strength and clearness of purpose. In all his business dealings he was a man of the strictest integrity and sense of honor, and he won the confidence and respect of his associates. In social life he was genial, sympathetic, bright and cheerful. He had strong convictions, which he expressed with frankness and sincerity, and was ready to stand with courage, and he accorded the same right to those who might differ from him. Differences of opinion didn't limit his friendships. He was very kind-hearted, and his charities were numerous and generous. But his modesty was such that few knew of them beside the beneficiaries of his liberality.

Mr. Callender was an earnest Christian. His religion was of the old-time sort—a trust in Jesus Christ as his Savior—and an humble and consistent walk with God and man. He tried to live the thirteenth chapter of 1 Corinthians in his daily life. He was a ruling elder in the Hendersonville Presbyterian Church, and he discharged the duties of his office with conscientious faithfulness, watching for souls. He regarded spiritual and eternal interests as of chief importance. His religious life was joyous and free, looking at the bright and promising aspect of the gospel. He was a strong help to me as his pastor.

Mr. Callender was married twenty-three years ago to Miss Pauline Dunn of Hendersonville who, with one daughter, Elizabeth, survives him. Theirs was an ideally happy married life. In his beautiful and hospitable home he manifested the sweetest and most attractive features of his character. Those nearest and dearest to him could bear strongest witness to his loveliness. He leaves to them the heritage of a good name, a godly example and the precious memory of a life of faithful service to God and man. He has entered into the rest of God's people.
