FOREWORD

In arranging and classifying some manuscripts in the McClung Historical Collection several years ago, the editor discovered one unidentified document, which upon examination and comparison proved to be, without doubt, an enumerator's copy of the population schedule of the federal census of 1810 for Grainger County, Tennessee.

The document was extremely fragile; the paper was rag, and had been subjected to dampness and heat, resulting in brittleness, and it was evident that a portion was missing.

No population schedule of any federal census prior to 1830 exists for any county in East Tennessee; in fact, only one survives for any county in the state prior to 1820, that of 1810 for Bedford County in Middle Tennessee.

In view of the unique character of the document, the Library of the University of Tennessee at Knoxville has decided that the 1810 Grainger County population schedule should be made available to the public. Therefore, the University of Tennessee is pleased to present the McClung Historical Collection Special Studies Number 1. This report is one of the other unique materials in the Collection available in printed form.

The Library is indebted to Dr. W. Neil Franklin, Chief, General Reference Section of the National Archives and Reference Service, for supplying pertinent data included in the introduction and to Mrs. Edwin A. Johnson for the typing.

INTRODUCTION

Grainger County, named for Mary Grainger, wife of William Blount, first and only governor of the Southwest Territory, was created on April 22, 1796, out of portions of Knox County, the area lying north of the Holston (now Tennessee) River was part of Hawkins County; hence Hawkins County originally encompassed all the territory which became Grainger County.

Portions of Grainger County were removed in 1801 when two new counties, Claiborne and Anderson, were created. Additional territory was removed when Union County was created in 1850.

As stated in the Foreword, there are no federal census records for the East Tennessee counties before 1830. The National Archives, in a Reference Service Report dated January 18, 1955, states: "Before 1830, the census schedules were turned over [by the enumerators] to the United States District Marshals, who were responsible for taking the census, [and in turn] to the Clerk of the Federal District Court in each locality. The Clerk was then responsible for keeping them in the local Court House. In 1830, the schedules were ordered sent to Washington, and it is not known whether the Tennessee schedules (except for Rutherford County) were lost while in the custody of the Clerks of the Federal District Courts or whether they were lost or burned subsequently to being sent to Washington."

In the Miscellaneous Treasury Accounts in the records of the General Accounting Office in the National Archives is the account, dated May 6, 1811, of Charles T. Porter for taking the Third Census of the United States (1810) in the eastern district of Tennessee. "This account lists the name of Noah Jornegan (Jarnigan) as the enumerator for Grainger County. It shows that Jornegan enumerated 6,397 persons and received a total compensation of $115.94 3/4 for his services." (Reference Service Report, January 18, 1955.)

A part of the following census is missing. By consulting a printed abstract, Aggregate amount of Persons within the United States in the year, 1810 (Washington, 1811) the following totals were located:
