MEMORANDUM

Plaintiff in error, referred to as the defendant, was charged in the indictment with the murder of Lyndell Presson, who was killed on the night of December 22, 1932. The Jury found defendant guilty of murder in the first degree and assessed his minimum punishment at imprisonment for twenty years. He appealed and insists that the judgment should be reversed because the verdict is not supported by any evidence and because the evidence preponderates in favor of his innocence.

Lyndell Presson, who left his home in Benton County about seven o'clock on the evening of December 22, was killed some time during the night after he had crossed the Tennessee River into Humphreys County. His body was discovered in Humphreys County north of the N. & C. Railway track on a blind road that led off from a road leading from State Highway No. 1 to Johnsonville. The car had been carried to that point and the body was in the car.

Dr. Smythe, who examined the body, described the wounds. There was a stab wound over the right eye, another under the chin, and another one and one half inches deep at the back of the neck near the base of the head. There was a gun shot wound in the back two inches below the shoulder blade which ranged upward. Another wound on the head was apparently caused by a blow from a blunt instrument which fractured the skull. The doctor expressed the opinion that the gun shot caused immediate death. He said the blow on the head would procure coma, followed probably by death within a few days. He was of the opinion that neither of the stab wounds were mortal. Powder burns marked the flesh as well as the clothing, indicating that the shot was made at close range. That wound was not made while the deceased was in the car, for, if so, the back of the car seat would have prevented the wound entering below the shoulder blade. The rumble seat of the roadster was closed and the cushion was at Presson's home.

Deputy Sheriff Westbrook testified that there was considerable blood on the right fender and also on the left side of the car front. Blood was also on the cushion inside mostly on the right, and Mr. Westbrook said it appeared as if the body had been dragged over the right side to the left side of the car seat. The car was off the road in a muddy field near a blind road that led off from the road to Johnsonville. Tracks of the car indicated that two attempts had been made without success to run the car into other parts of the field. Beside the car there were the tracks of two men and these tracks indicated that the men had got out of the car. The officers were not able to trace the tracks because of the condition of the ground.

Sheriff McCauley of Benton County testified that there were three tracks on the left side of the car under the runningboard, two of them flat, and one looked as if it had been made with the side of a foot. Another track on the opposite side was smaller and passed around to the front. Sheriff McCauley's opinion was that the tracks were made by two men. One of the tracks was larger than the other and indicated that it was made by a pancake sole with diamond checks on the sole and a steel rim around the heel. The smaller tracks showed a smooth sole. On examination in chief, the sheriff said there was a steel fringe on the outer part of the sole, but evidently he referred to the heel. He took a pattern of this track for a comparison, and he compared the pattern with shoes sold by a merchant at Camden from whom the defendant bought a pair of shoes in the fall. The sheriff testified that the track appeared as if made by shoes sold by the Camden merchant.

Early in the week after the homicide on Thursday night ATNY Pafford of Camden went to Humphreys County and inspected the location about the Indian Creek bridge. He testified that tracks from the bridge into a field appeared to have been made by a shoe with a circular steel rim on the heel. Twenty or thirty steps distant on an elevation thirty feet above the road Mr. Pafford found five small coins of the value of seventy one cents. Between where he found the coins and the road he observed a small spot of blood and a short distance beyond another small spot of blood. He also observed two tracks, one smaller than the other. This examination was made three or four days after the homicide and Mr. Pafford could not be positive that the spots were blood spots. Witnesses introduced by the defendant testified that they were not blood spots. Mr. Pafford testified that he thought it was blood but could not be positive.

The circumstance indicates that the killing was done elsewhere than where the body was found, and it is probable that the tragedy occurred at the Indian Creek bridge.

Dorsey Hedge, who lived in Benton County at Trotter's Landing, was returning from Nashville on the night of December 22, driving Mr. Lashlee's truck. The truck had a strong light and enabled him to see a distance ahead. As he passed the Indian Creek Bridge between 8:30 and 9 o'clock he saw and identified Presson's car with the lights out, parked at the north end of the bridge, headed toward Waverly, that is toward Highway No. 1 and he also saw a man standing on the ground on the right side of the car and leaning over it. Hedge passed on the left and could not identify the man. John Jarrell occupied the front seat of the truck with Hedge and he also saw and positively identified the car at the Indian Creek bridge as Presson's Ford roadster. He thought he saw a man at the car.

The map used in the examination of witnesses, which would have been helpful, is not in the record.

Young Presson lived with his father in Benton County, about three miles from the State bridge over the Tennessee River and about the same distance from the Trotter's Landing ferry. The Presson home is situated 500 yards from Biven's store, which is at the intersection of the State Highway and Trotter's Landing ferry road.

The defendant Waggoner, apparently a bird of passage, loafed most of the time at Mrs. Allie Lashlee's home 400 yards from Bivens' store and part of the time at the shack of Glyndell Chester at the Gravel pit two and one half miles toward Camden from Bivens' store. It appears that the Presson home was on the right and Mrs. Lashlee's home on the left of the highway. The evidence shows that the defendant and the deceased were friends and associated much together, and it shows that the defendant drank a good deal of whiskey. Young Presson was engaged in selling whiskey.

At seven o'clock on the night of December 22 Squire J.H. Presson, testified for the State, said his son and the defendant left his home in his son's roadster. Squire Presson had no information about where they were going. The car was headed out the road from the house toward the highway. He does not attempt to account for the whereabouts of the car from the time it left his home until it was found with his son dead in it in Humphreys County the next day.

Glyndell Chester and the defendant spent most of the day of the 22nd together. They went to three places trying to borrow a gun, and about four o'clock the defendant went to Biven's store and bought two shotgun shells. According to Chester, the defendant wanted the shells. According to the defendant, Chester wanted them. Neither gave satisfactory explanation of why the shells were wanted. After the shells were purchased by the defendant at Biven's store between four and five o'clock he and Eulin Victory went to the Presson home and were seen engaged in a conversation with young Presson. The defendant says they went there to buy some whiskey and that deceased gave them whiskey to drink.

Defendant testified that he arranged with Presson to carry some meat in his car to Chester's shack that night, and when they left the Presson home about seven o'clock they went near where the meat was concealed, loaded it in the car, and carried it to the Chester shack, where it was left. Defendant testified that young Presson stated when he left him near the shack that he was going to Johnsonville that night. It is proper to state here that Glyndell Chester denied that any meat was left at the shack. It is proper to say that the defendant testified that he and Chester had stolen a hog the day before the killing and had the meat concealed at the place where young Presson went with him to load it into the car and carry it to the Chester shack.

Aside from this explanation of young Presson's whereabouts, there is no evidence to indicate where he was until about eight o'clock. Curtis Brown testified that between seven and eight o'clock young Presson drove up to his house, which is located three quarters of a mile from the Trotter's Landing ferry, and stopped and they had a conversation. Young Presson told Brown that he was going down to the river. Brown testified that he stuck his head in the car and talked to Presson five or ten minutes, that there was a bottle of whiskey on the car seat which Presson gave him two drinks while at his house. Brown testified that no one was on the seat in the car.

Glyde Tibbs, ferryman at Trotter's Landing, said that Presson crossed on his ferry-boat around eight o'clock and that no one was in the car with him. It was a cold night and Tibbs says Presson left the car, came over into the launch and rode across with him, and when he left the ferry-boat, Tibbs closed the door as he got into the car. After leaving the ferry-boat Presson stopped his car on the bank and talked with Floyd Tibbs, who testified that Presson was alone. Both of these witnesses say that the rumble seat of the car was down.

It was nine o'clock when Hedge and Jarrell passed Presson's car at the Indian Creek bridge, two miles from the Trotter's Landing ferry on the road that leads across from near Dr. McCrary's to Highway No. 1. There is no explanation in the record of Presson's whereabouts from the time he crossed the ferry until Hedge saw him at the Indian Creek bridge two miles from the ferry. The circumstances indicate that the man seen by Hedge beside the car was Presson and that he was alive at that time.

Between eight-thirty and nine o'clock John Jackson and Tom Talley, who lived in the vicinity of the Indian Creek bridge, heard the report of a gun. If the killing occurred at the Indian Creek bridge the body was carried in the car to the blind road in the Trace Creek bottom six miles distant from the Indian Creek bridge. According to some witnesses, a little less than that. It appears from the tracks at the car where the body was found that two men participated in the homicide.

There is no evidence that the defendant crossed the river into Humphreys County that night. There is positive proof that he was not in the car when he crossed the river on the ferry nor when Presson stepped in his car at the home of Curtis Brown, and only one man was seen by Hedge and Jarrell with the car at the Indian Creek bridge.

Circumstances to establish guilt are relied on. These circumstances imply the motive of robbery and, according to the testimony of Glyndell Chester, show that defendant prepared for the robbery by purchasing the shotgun shells and attempting to borrow a shotgun, but there is no evidence that the defendant procured a gun that night, or that he was seen in possession of a gun that night, and no evidence that he was in the car when it reached Curtis Brown's at eight o'clock or after that time. There is no evidence to suggest how the defendant could meet the deceased at a rendezvous either at the bridge in Humphreys County or elsewhere. The two keepers of the bridge testified that the bridge is well lighted all the way across. Both were well acquainted with the defendant and with the deceased Presson. Both testified that neither crossed the bridge that night. It is hardly imaginable that the deceased concealed the defendant in the rumble seat of his car with a gun and in that concealed position carried him across the river.

Another circumstance relied on by the State is that defendant bought a pair of shoes from a merchant at Camden with patent soles and a steel rim on the heel, and that the tracks of one of the men at the car were made by such a shoe. But this merchant testified that he sold five or six dozens pairs of shoes of that description that fall to customers in the vicinity, and other merchants at Johnsonville and Waverly sold similar shoes.

The circumstance of flight is also relied upon. Two or more witnesses testified that on that day of the killing suspicion was directed at the defendant, he was asked a number of questions, and it became known that he was suspected. The defendant explained that after hearing that he was accused of the crime he left for California where his sister lived, hoping to keep out of the way until the guilty parties could be ascertained and by that means avoid going to jail for a crime which he testified he did not commit.

The defendant testified that after young Presson carried the meat to the shack he left there about nine o'clock and went to the home of Mrs. Lashlee where he spent the night. His alibi is supported by the testimony of Mack Lashlee and Ralph Lashlee. They say he came at nine or ten o'clock and spent the night at their mother's home.

While the State has produced sufficient circumstances to show defendant's purpose to rob Presson and has shown by the testimony of Chester preparation for the robbery by the purchase of two shotgun shells, there is no fact or circumstance from which it can be inferred that the defendant came across the river into Humphreys County that night. As stated, it is incredible that defendant, with a shotgun, came across concealed in the rumble seat of the car and after coming across met an accomplice in the crime at the Indian Creek bridge or elsewhere. There is no circumstance to support such a theory.

The circumstantial evidence relied on by the State does no more than point the finger of suspicion at the accused. More than that is required. The circumstances must be such as to establish guilt, to the exclusion of any other reasonable hypothesis. In that the evidence is altogether lacking.

Because of this defect of evidence--the failure of the State to show by any fact or circumstance that the defendant crossed the river into Humphreys County on the night of the homicide--the judgment of the trial court must be reversed and the cause remanded for another trial, at which the State may have an opportunity to supply the fatal defect.

PRO CONFESGO.

In this cause, on motion of complainant and it appearing to the Court that the defendant, Albert Adams has been regularly summoned and brought into Court by service of process, and has failed to appear and make defense to complaint filed against him in this cause, it is, therefore, ordered by the Court that the bill be taken for confessed, and the cause set for hearing the ex parte.

And this cause came on further to be heard of this day before the Hon. J.D.G. Morton, Judge, upon the bill of the complainant, the summons, and the Sheriffs return thereon, and the judgment pro confesso heretofore entered against the defendant, and the oral testimony of complainant and witnesses offered in open Court.

And it satisfactorily appeared to the Court that the charges made by complainant in her bill against the defendant are true; that the defendant has been guilty of such cruel and inhuman treatment and offered such indignities to her person, as rendered her condition intolerable, and made it unsafe and improper for her to cohabit with him, and be under his dominion and control. It is, therefore, ordered, adjudged and decreed by the Court that the bonds of matrimony subsisting between complainant and defendant be absolutely, perpetually and forever dissolved, and all rights of an unmarried person are hereby restored to complainant, and her maiden name, Lonie May Jones, is also restored to her.

And it further appearing to the Court that the parties hereto have entered into an agreement as to rights of alimony for support and maintenance of complainant, and division of personal property, which agreement is in the words and figures as follows:

Albert Adams, and wife, Lonie Adams make the following agreements and stipulations relative to all property rights, and maintenance and alimony rights, to wit:

It is agreed between the parties that the said Lonie Adams has and is to have, free from any claims of the said Albert Adams, all the household furniture, fixtures and goods, except an electric stove, radio and refrigerator, which three articles is and shall be the property of the said Albert Adams. It is further agreed that the said Albert Adams will pay the said Lonie Adams the sum of fifty ($50) Dollars, payable by installments of ten dollars ($10) per month for five months, the first payment to be made on May 1st, 1934, and an equal amount on the first day of each month thereafter until said sum is paid.

In consideration of the concessions herein made to each other, both parties hereto released and waive any and all rights that they may now have against each other in the matter of property rights, right of maintenance and support, and also right of alimony, or any other right that might exist on account of the marital relations of the parties.

It is agreed by both parties that this agreement may be made a part of the judgment of the court in the cause of Lonie Adams against Albert Adams that is now being filed in the Circuit Court at Waverly, Tennessee, for divorce.

This the 3rd of April, 1934.

And it appearing that the parties have agreed that their agreement shall be made a part of the judgment of the Court, it is, therefore, ordered by the Court that the complainant have and recover of the defendant the sum of $50.00, payable according to the terms of said agreement. This cause will be retained in Court for any necessary, to enforce said agreement. The defendant will pay costs of the cause for which let execution issue.

Circuit Court, Waverly Tennessee
August Term 1934.
Housebreaking and Larceny.

Burns & Sanders

To the Honorable Circuit Judge, sitting at Waverly Humphreys County Tennessee. Your petitioner, Austin Sanders one of the defendants in the above styled case, respectfully shows to the Court, that he was indicted at this term of the Court, for Housebreaking and Larceny and pleads guilty to the charge, and was given a sentence to the State Penitentiary at Nashville Tenn. for a period of not less than three years nor more than three years, and the costs of the case against him.

That he is a boy of some 21 years of age, of very small stature, he is an immature child, and all of life has been weak and below the normal young man, subject to be influenced by others of stronger physical and mental make up.

That on the occasion and time of the offense for which he was indicted, he was drunk, with others that were drunk or intoxicated, and while in such condition, went with others to various places as many young men do while under the influence of drink, in an automobile and while in this condition, the offense was committed, and he avers, that he took no part in the actual breaking of the building, but upon invitation after the building was broken, did go into the building, and at the request of others bring some of the articles taken out and put them in the car.

That immediately after the arrest of the petitioner, he made a statement one Esqr. Maxx Moreaves of Waverly, giving all information that he could pertaining to the crime, that resulted in the apprehension of others connected with it, and the recovery of some of the stolen goods, without which is likely that no conviction could have been had, at least of all the parties to the crime.

That his father Alvin Sanders so situated that he can and will take this boy on parole and work him on the farm, and make such report of his conduct and doings, either to this Court, or any other Court, to which this requirement of the Court may be made.

Petitioner prays, that his sentence be suspended and that he be paroled to his father Alvin Sanders, under such orders as the Court may deem right and proper in such cases, to make sure the return of the boy into Court at any time the Court may order and for general relief.

REPORT OF GRAND JURY.

We, the members of the Grand Jury at the August term, 1934, for the Circuit Court of Humphreys County, beg leave to submit the following report to Your Honor. We have diligently and true presentment made of all matters given us in charge by your Honor or otherwise brought to our knowledge. We have examined the County Jail and Poor House and find the inmates well fed and cared for but we deem it our duty to call attention of this court to the condition of the Jail house. The condition is very poor. It needs repair. It leaks and the general conditions are such that it is practically impossible to maintain proper and sanitary conditions, we seriously call attention of the court to this condition and recommend the matter be given attention because of a fire at the jail within last twelve months the building, in our opinion, is unsafe. The poor house is in good shape and we report it satisfactory. We have examined all bonds required to be examined by us and find them properly executed and good and solvent for the several amounts thereof, and now having completed our labors, we respectfully ask to be discharged for the term. J.F. Dainel, W.R.H. Bowen, W. Anderson, W.C. Wall, Tom Thompson, E.W. Cullum, C.S. Oliver, A.W. Gatlin, R. D. Bruce, G.C. Coleman, Tom Cannon, A.C. Pace, and R.H. McKeel Foreman Grand Jury.
