Test John S. Johns, John S. Brown, Daniel Seivally

As I deem it necessary for giving my reasons for not leaving off a dowry they are that I did not think her capable of managing such for she has been insane for some twelve years or more, and further thought proper to mill her a plentiful support if it took the half of my estate or were all it is not my intention to wrong her to wright her. this September 15th 1837.
