Last, Will and Testament of Rachel Sims

I Rachel Sims, wife of C. H. Sims Jr. do make and publish this my last will and Testament, being of sound mind and disposing memory. And fearing that I may not live a great while I therefore make the same for the benefit of my children and husband. My will is that after my death and the death of my mother, my husband shall have the control of the tract of land upon which my mother has dower and homestead and which I hold by inheritance from my father, and not by dower and shall have the right to manage the same for the use and benefit of my first child, without being compelled to give security as guardian and shall have the right of the executor or Chorus, to take pay out of the use or rents and profits arising from the same, for his services for such control and management, and I hereby give to him my said husband, full power and authority, to sell one or both tracts of my land, on condition that he reinvests the proceeds in other real estate for the use and benefit of himself and my children, without any expense or authority of going to a Court of law or Equity to make said sale, and his and his authority for making said sale shall be his opinion that it will be greatly to the advantage of himself and children that said sale and reinvestment to be made, the two tracts of land I speak of are the one deeded to me by my father, and the other is the one not deeded but inherited by me from my father. I also authorize my said husband to sell fifty acres of land off of the Smith east end, of the tract of land deeded to me by my father, for personal property, or money, which proceeds need not be reinvested in real estate but I authorize this that proceeds of said sale may vest in my said husband to enable him, to the better provision for our first born children and raise and educate them.
