Dr. McDonald preached the funeral ari, accreming presence the mineral sermon in Atlanta, and spoke in part as follows:

"I have been Dr. Armstrong's pastor and be has been my family physican for fourteen years. He was rearied in a family where the influence of godly, parents was constantly before him, and by which his life was controlled and guided. He chose the notion profession of medicine, and the apostle of the gentiles oil not more to mugnify his office than did Dr. Armstrong in his profession. He songht in preparation the very best culture of the schools of this and other countries, and he honored his calling by the unflagging interest of constant study. I halleve be entered the humblest home when he was called with the same purpose and abacrity as into the same purpose and abacrity as into the most highly favored in social life.

"He was frank, true and brave, and for thirty years he had gone into cur homes as a very messenger of thesing and happiness. What an honored mans he leaves to his children. May the beavenly Father guide his student son to the initiation of the father's not be life; may the Divine Comforter sustain her who has been the joy and blessing of his carthly the.
