THE AUGUSTA CHRONICLE

A N D

GAZETTE OF THE STATE.

State of South-Carolina, } July 13, 1789.
Edgefield county.

WHEREAS the character of John Cannada, who formerly resided here, before he run away to the state of Georgia, has been required upon particular occasion, and for the satisfaction of honest citizens; we the subscribers, of said county, who have known the said John Cannada four or five years and upwards, during which time he was almost outlawed, apprehended in our county sundry times for cow and hog stealing, and at last burnt in the hand at our circuit Court held at Ninety-Six,—do declare, that he is a continual interrupter of the peace, in the neighbourhood in which he resided, circulating false reports and false accusations, and running to justice with his children, swearing, and endeavouring to sweat, the most heinous falsities imaginable. His path is not regarded in these parts, nor that of his daughter, Kimbrel's wife.—He is the most audacious villain that we know of—spiteful and undermining; accustomed to stealing, cheating, defrauding, and keeping a disorderly house; beating and abusing his wife; taking up with other women, and leaving his wife to shift for herself, who is at this time in our neighbourhood in the utmost distress.—We conclude that we have said enough, but more might be said.—Witness our hand the day and date above written.
