Miss Gentry was an amiable and lovable young lady. While she went with no one as constantly as with Bates, she was greatly admired by young men, and her popularity, must have had something to de with the feelings in the breast of the young man which nerved him to such a deed. The impulse driving him seemed to be that if they could not be together in life, they should be in death—and they were.

He, too, was a member of Union-Station and a teacher in the Sunday-school. His position was that of note clerk at the First National Bank. His record is excellent, and he was held in the highest regard. His books were found absolutely correct. This comes from a high official source. He had no objectionable habits, and was without question a man of the highest personal character. He was in his twenty-fourth year. After leaving the High School, he went to Blehmond College with the intention of studying law, but gave up this plan temporarily, at least, and went into the bank. clusion that Senator Gorman is a candidate.

The friend in question went on to say that Senator Gorman will sook the nomination if he is reasonably confident of two results, namely, that he can secure the nomination, and that his chances for election are equal it, those of the Republican candidates. A handleap upon either proposition, it was stated, would preclude his appreciance before the convention on a candidate.

It was stated that the Senator does not care for a complimentary nomination, with defent starting him in the face. He would abhor the idea of being a candidate before the convention and meeting defeat there. His position in American politics and statesmanship is so well secured that he does not feel the necessity for empty honors.

that he does not feel the necessity for empty honors.

There are many contingencies, it was explained, which enter into the situation and all of these will be carefully taken into account by Senator Gorman before he allows his name to go before the convention with his authority. It will be recalled that no man has the right to say to-day that Senator Gorman is an avowed candidate for the resistance.

The candidates were hustling all day in the rain yesterday, and weer elequently plending for votes at right.

The meeting at Barton Heights was harmonious, and while it lasted until 11 clocks and many speeches were made, they were for the most part in a good natured vein and free from personal abuse.

CALLED TO ORDER.

Mr. J. W. Williams was made chairman and the first speaker was Mr. W. H. Zimmermann, of Richmond, who spote briefly in presenting the claims of Mr. Rosenegk for the House of Delegates, the latter having been detained at another meeting at Ridge Church.

Mr. Zimmermann spoke in the warmest praise of Mr. Rosenegk, whom he declared to be a man of the strictest integrity, honesty and intelligence, and he appealed to his hearers to support him on Thursday.

Mr. Bryant followed in a strong speech in his own behalf for the office of Commonwealth's Attorney, and dwelt at some length upon the important duties of the office. He pudd his respects briefly to his opponents, and while he did it in a most inoffensee manner, he took some rather sharp cracks at both.

presented to mutual friends, with the view to retiring the two who should appear the weakest. This proposition had been declined, said the speaker, but Captain Binford, who was present, said he had not declined, and Mr. Gardner said he was giad the proposition was still open.

AN OLD-TIMISH.

When Mr. Gardner closed he was cheered loudly by his home townsmen, and Captain Binford came to the front. He troke briefly of his record in the House in the session of 1893-'4, and while he was so engaged a voter in the rear of the hall arose and demanded to know it the speaker had not been instructed to vote for Fitz Lee for United States Senator, and then voted for Martin. This rather excited the speaker, and he was somewhat rough in his reply. He denied the intimation with much spirit, and, the gentleman who made it withdrew it, and Captain O'Bannon had said Captain Binford voted for General Lee. Captain Binford voted for Martin, but he had refused to disobey the wishes of his people.

Captain Binford had much to say of his opponents, but he spoke of them in a pleasant strain, and closed with an earnest appeal for the nomination on Thursday.

The candidates of sheriff were very brief. Mr. Bolomon had only to say that he had served the people to the best of his ability for twolve years and would be grateful for another term in the office. Mr. Tiller followed in a speech of about the same length. He said he had no public record and could only appeal to his people upon his long fordence in the county as a citizen, and business man, 'Squire Dorrlectt spoke for re-election to the office of justice of the peace, and was followed in a brief speech by Mr. S.
