HEAD-QUARTERS, New-York
29th August, 1783.

O R D E R S.

IT is the Commander in Chief's Order, that no person under any pretext whatsoever, shall presume to demolish any stone or brick building, or remove any part of the materials of which such building is composed, even though he be the proprietor thereof; nor shall he take down or remove the materials of any wooden house or building: until the Board of Commissioners for settling and adjusting matters of account, debt, &c., shall upon due examination, be satisfied that the house and materials belong to the person making such application, and that he is under no covenant or engagement, repugnant to such removal; of which examination minutes are to be kept: Every person concerned in the demolition of stone and brick buildings, or in taking down or removing the materials of wooden buildings, and not able to produce an Act of the said Board, authorising the same, which is to be indorsed with the Commandant's approbation shall be taken up by any civil or military officer, and sent to the Provost, and punished as the nature of his crime may require. (Signed) OL. DE LANCEY, Adj. Gen.

Head-Quarters,

New-York, Sept. 4, 1783.

O R D E R S.

THE Officers commanding Regiments which are embarked, will take care that no Officer under their command is permitted to fail, who has not satisfied his Creditors.

Head-Quarters
New-York, June 16, 1783.

O R D E R S.

THE Proprietors of houses or Lands lately evacuated, will apply to Lieutenant General Campbell, for the possession of those on Long-Island; to Brigadier General Birch for those on New-York Island, and to Brigadier General Bruce, for those on Staten-Island: these General Officers will be pleased to cause all such estates to be immediately delivered up to the Proprietors or to their Attornies, unless where they may see sufficient reasons for retaining them some time longer, which reasons they will report to the Commander in Chief. In like manner all estates which shall hereafter be evacuated, are to be surrendered up to the Proprietors.

(Signed) OL. DE LANCEY, Adj. Gen.

ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
New-York, 7th June, 1783.

ALL those Persons who have returned their Names to the ADJUTANT-GENERAL for Passages from this Place, agreeable to the Notice in the Public Papers, are desired to apply to the Gentlemen appointed by his Excellency the Commander in Chief, to examine their several Claims, who will attend for that Purpose, at the City-Hall, from Eleven o'Clock, until Two

By their Excellencies

Sir, GUY CARLETON, K. B.
General and Commander in Chief of all his Majesty's Forces within the Colonies, lying on the Atlantic Ocean from Nova-Scotia to West-Florida, inclusive.
&c. &c. &c.

And ROBERT DIGBY, Esq.
Rear Admiral of the Red, and Commander in Chief of all his Majesty's Ships and Vessels in North-America, &c. &c. &c.

A PROCLAMATION.

HAVING received information that an outrage has lately been committed upon an American vessel, in the harbour of this city, by seizing and destroying her colours, in a riotous and disorderly manner, which behaviour is not only a breach of the peace of the city, but has a mischievous tendency to prolong the animosities, which it is the design of the Provisional Articles to assuage and extinguish.

This is therefore to warn all persons whatever, from offering any insult to the colours of any foreign nation within this harbour, under penalty of being severely punished.

And as the persons concerned in this outrage have not yet been discovered, the Officers of the Police, and of his Majesty's Navy and Army, are hereby strictly charged to cause all persons who have been guilty of this offence to be apprehended, that they may be brought to trial, and upon conviction, be punished with the severity due to the offence.

Given under our Hands and Seals, at the City of New-York, this 27th Day of October, 1783.

GUY CARLETON.
R. DIGBY.

By command of their Excellencies,
FREDK. MACKENZIE,
THOS. M. PALMER.

Blank Books, Bills of Writing Paper, Wax an Bibles, Confession of Fa pher, concerning the p Confirmation of this Stat in our paper of October 14, we published an account of the personal abuse which John Pettit and James Alton had met with at Morristown in New-Jersey. The persons who committed that outrage have since been indicted, and though they were all acquitted when brought to trial, yet the court has directed Pettit's watch to be restored, and we hear that it was accordingly brought in here a few days ago by Mr. Beckman.

To the PRINTERS of the MORNING POST.

GENTLEMEN,
YOUR liberal professions of impartiality on commencing your publications, induced me to peruse them; and while they are conducted on that principle, they must excite attention. Having some political remarks to offer, permit me thro' the channel of your paper to submit them to public inspection.

A FRIEND TO TRUTH.

Scribendi recte sepius est principium et finis.
Hoc.

WHOEVER minutely examines certain curious performances, composed without the British lines, and with which we have been lately favoured, cannot fail noticing in them a very great falling off from the poet's invaluable rule. Truth and sound policy is entirely out of the question. Their chief fort seems to lie in an acrimonious style, which can answer no other purpose than to rekindle popular passion, and revive party divisions; yet the ostensible pretension is, the promotion, and extension of political virtue. Amongst these extraordinary writers, Brutus and Hampden seem to hold the foremost rank, and from their collateral political principles, the general purport of their discussions, and similarity of sentiment throughout, a very attentive reader at first sight, might suspect their productions to have issued from the same pen, which, without insisting on, it is evident that they counted highly on the effects of their declamations: yet, if they had that sincere regard which they profess for the esteem of the public, and were men of real capacity and comprehensive information, they might without such coarse invectives, have delineated much more satisfactorily and distinctly the Tory character. It would be tedious to detail their sentiments; as it is probable they do not believe themselves all that they have so dogmatically advanced; and as to veracity, it is foreign to the purpose, that being by no means their end or aim.—In fact; the vague notions generally entertained from the first of the late momentous contest in this country, viz. that all friends to the Congress were Whigs, and all its enemies Tories; which doctrine is still obstinately supported, must naturally make any man of historical etudition smile to find these terms constantly in use, and constantly perverted without the smallest examination of their true meaning. In great Britain these epithets are nearly obsolete, they subsided with the parties which they characterized, and if accidentally mentioned without doors, they die on the instant, like the How do you do? I am your most obedient, &c. and other modes of salutation peculiar to different countries, intended to evince and preserve good manners, but which as time may change, they cannot be supposed to have a permanent influence. For a clear definition of Whig and Tory, I would refer Brutus to the celebrated Dean Swift, a masterly professor of singular political eminence, whose Drapier's letters evince his inviolable regard for the liberty of the subject, and the happiness of his native country: If Brutus and Hampden would read him with attention, they might learn how to correct their false politics; and if they really wished to conciliate the minds of the people, and resolved not to sound an alarm throughout the nation, except in a case of such dire necessity, as that which employed the attention of the above respectable author, they might lay some claim to public confidence. It is easy to pervert the most judicious reasoning, but in spite of all their ingenuity, the sophistry of such Effayists will appear in its proper colour, on a minute scrutiny. To conclude, When the rage of intestine divisions subside in any State; it is natural to anticipate the restoration of tranquillity. Harmony I trust will finally prevail; but it is a mortifying reflection, that certain individuals are still labouring with much art and close perseverance, to revive those fatal heats and animosities, that one would have thought a general peace must at last have afforded.

on the contrary the vengeance which is so loudly denounced against them by the old whigs, with a sense of their own guilt, terrifies them prodigiously.—However, we find that many of the most prudent sort of those unhappy creatures are gone off already—they had no confidence in the power or promises of the law-ers, and suspected that they were only—seducing them to tarry until they could—take a little off their fleeces.—And from the associations which are formed, and daily forming by the whigs, they could expect nothing but rough handling; the moment that the citizens were assembled.

Such of the old tory party who remain will be the first objects of popular rage;—and the apostates who signed the association in 75, and afterwards joined the British, with the traders and other strangers who have gone into New-York in the course of the war, will then be noticed in their order—Such, as I am informed, is the intentions of the old citizens, and, if it is necessary, they will be supported by their friends from the country;—so that if any considerable number of obnoxious characters continue in the city, after the British give it up, there will be great confusion for a while,—but no more than, all things considered, might be expected.

Last week, a number of Tories went up to Albany to appear before the Rebel Court—the event is not yet known, but the people at large look for it with great impatience, and are watching, with strict attention, the conduct of every one who is concerned in court business. But whatever may be the fate of those delinquents, in their present experiment, the voice of the inhabitants is so universally against them; that they cannot hope for a peaceable residence among us. The country counties have engaged many months ago, to hold the Tories banished; and there is, if possible, less reason to imagine that the citizens will be more indulgent, after all the insulting provocations which they have received.—Several persons in different parts of the State, undertook some time ago to plead in an indirect way for the Tories; but they were very soon convinced that their schemes would not succeed.—Indeed, the people in general, no sooner hear such kind of language uttered, than they suspect that the author is in tory pay.

A letter from a gentleman in Albany to his friend in Jersey, concludes thus:

"I really think that the Loyalists are exceedingly wrong to venture to stay, for if even they should be cleared by law, yet they will be roughly handled by the exasperated mob. Every person I have been in company with speaks highly of the Governor, but the whigs say that he will shew the Tories no mercy.

"I am told that there will be upwards of one hundred whigs from this place, who will go down completely armed, to assist in clearing the city of Tories. The lawyers are watched; the whigs speak very hard of them, and their conduct is reprobated."

THE TORY'S SOLILOQUI.

CON. with that truly gallant and amorous Son of Neptune, Captain JOSEPH PEYTON, of the Beaver Sloop of War, to which is added a humorous Poetical Epistle from Mrs. Williams to her Husband.

This unparalleled Trial is replete with the most humorous incidents, and cannot fail to

THE UNITED STATES IN CONGRESS assembled, after giving the most honourable testimony to the merits of the federal armies, and presenting them with the thanks of their country for their long, eminent and faithful services, having thought proper, by their proclamation bearing date the 18th day of October last, to discharge such part of the troops as were engaged for the war, and to permit the officers on furlough to retire from service from and after to-morrow, which proclamation having been communicated in the public papers for the information and government of all concerned—it only remaining for the Commander in Chief to address himself once more, and that for the last time, to the arms of the united States (however widely dispersed the individuals who composed them may be) and to bid them an affectionate—a long farewell.

But before the Commander in Chief takes his final leave of those he holds most dear, he wishes to indulge himself a few moments in calling to mind a slight review of the past—he will then take the liberty of exploring with his military friends their future prospects, of advising the general line of conduct which in his opinion ought to be pursued—and he will conclude the address by expressing the obligations he feels himself under for the spirited and able assistance he has experienced from them in the performance of an arduous office.

A contemplation of the complete attainment (at a period earlier than could have been expected) of the object for which we contended, against so formidable a power, cannot but inspire us with astonishment and gratitude. The disadvantageous circumstances on our part, under which the war was undertaken can never be forgotten.—The singular interpositions of providence in our feeble condition, were such, as could scarcely escape the attention of the most unobserving—while the unparalleled perseverance of the armies of the united States, through almost every possible suffering and discouragement, for the space of eight long years, was little short of a standing miracle.

It is not the meaning, nor within the compass of this address to detail the hardships peculiarly incident to our service, or to describe the distresses which in several instances have resulted from the extremes of hunger and nakedness combined with the rigors of an inclement season. Nor is it necessary to dwell on the dark side of our past affairs.

Every American Officer and Soldier must now console himself for any unpleasant circumstance which may have occurred, by a recollection of the uncommon scenes in which he has been called to act no inglorious part, and the astonishing events of which he has been a witness.

Events, which have seldom, if ever before, taken place on the stage of human action, nor can they probably ever happen again.—For who has before seen a disciplined army formed at once from such raw materials? Who that was not a witness could imagine that the most violent local prejudices would cease so soon; and that men who came from the different parts of the continent, strongly disposed by the habit of education to despise and quarrel with each other, would instantly become but one patriotic band of brothers? Or who that was not on the spot can trace the steps by which such a wonderful revolution has been effected, and such a glorious period put to our warlike toils?

It is universally acknowledged that the enlarged prospect of happiness opened by the confirmation of our independence and sovereignty, almost exceeds the power of description. And shall not the brave men who have contributed so essentially to these inestimable acquisitions, returning from the field of war, to the field of agriculture, participate in all the blessings which have been obtained? In such a Republic who will exclude them from the rights of citizens, and the fruits of their labour? In such a country so happily circumstanced; the pursuits of commerce and the cultivation of the soil will unfold to the officers and soldiers who have secured innumerable blessings for others.—With their wishes, and this benediction, the Commander in Chief is about to retire from service.—The curtain of separation will soon be drawn—and the military scene to him will be closed forever.

In order to effect this desirable purpose, and remove the prejudices which may have taken possession of the minds of any of the good people of this State, it is earnestly recommended to all the troops, that with strong attachments to the union they should carry with them into civil society, the most conciliating dispositions, and that they should prove themselves not less virtuous and useful as citizens, than they have been victorious as soldiers.—What though there should be some envious individuals who are unwilling to pay the debt the public has contracted, or to yield the tribute due to merit, yet, let such unworthy treatment produce no incentives, or any intimation of imtemperate conduct. Let it be remembered, that the unbiassed voice of the free citizens of the united States has promised the just reward, and given the merited applause. Let it be known and remembered that the reputation of the federal arms is established beyond the reach of malevolence. And let a consciousness of their achievements and fame still incite the men who composed them to honourable actions, under the persuasions that the private virtues of economy, prudence, and industry, will not be less amiable in civil life, than the more splendid qualities of valour, perseverance and enterprise were in the field. Every one may rest assured that much, very much of the future happiness of the officers and men will depend upon the wife and manly conduct which shall be adopted by them, when they are mingled with the great body of the community. And although the General has so frequently given it as his opinion, in the most public and explicit manner, that unless the principles of the federal government are properly supported and the powers of the union increased, the honour, dignity, and justice of the nation will be lost forever; yet he cannot help repeating on this occasion so interesting a sentiment, and leaving it as his last injunction to every officer and every soldier who may view the subject in the same serious point of light, to add his best endeavours to those of his worthy fellow citizens towards effecting these great and valuable purposes on which our very existence as a nation so materially depends.

The Commander in Chief conceives little is now wanting to enable the soldier to exchange the military character into that of the citizen; but that steady, decent tenor of behaviour, which has generally distinguished not only the army under his immediate command, but the different detachments and separate armies thro' the course of the war. From their good sense and prudence, he anticipates the happiest consequences; and while he congratulates them on the glorious occasion which renders their services in the field no longer necessary, he wishes to express the strong obligations he feels himself under for the assistance he has received from every class—and in every instance.—He presents his thanks in the most serious and affectionate manner, to the General Officers, as well for their counsels on many interesting occasions, as for their arduous in promoting the success of the plans he had adopted.—To the Commandants of regiments and corps, and to the others, for their great zeal and attention in carrying his orders promptly into execution.—To the staff for their alacrity and exactness in performing the duties of their several departments.—And to the Non-commissioned Officers and Private Soldiers; for their extraordinary patience and suffering, as well as their invincible fortitude in action.—To the various branches of the army, the General takes this last and solemn opportunity of professing his inviolable attachment and friendship.—He wishes more than bare professions were in his power; that he was really able to be useful to them all in future life; he flatters himself, however, they will do him the justice to believe, that whatever could with propriety under the divine auspices, have secured innumerable blessings for others.—With their wishes, and this benediction, the Commander in Chief is about to retire from service.—The curtain of separation will soon be drawn—and the military scene to him will be closed forever.

PHILADELPHIA, November 1.
The brig Polly, Captain M'Fadden, failed from this port on the 9th of September last, and after a very disagreeable passage of 30 days arrived at the Havana. In a storm which lasted more than one hundred hours, he saw (on the 20th of September) a large ship sink, and every soul must doubtless have perished, as no assistance could be given them. Capt. M'Fadden says that he never saw anything equal to it, his vessel must certainly have perished, and with it the crew, had he not timely have struck his top masts and yards, twice was his cabin filled, and every thing swept from off the deck.

We are informed by a gentleman from Princeton, that the eastern mail was on Thursday night last taken out of the Post-Office at that place. The robbery was committed in the most daring manner, Mr Martin who carries the mail as far as Morristown, had no sooner entered the office, and laid his charge on the table, than a fellow entered, blew out the candle, and carried off the mail with all its contents.

William Leonard de Bellicombe, commander of the royal and military order of St. Louis, Marshal of the Camps and Armies of his Majesty, his Governor, Lieutenant General of the French leeward islands, and Inspector General of the troops, artillery, militia, and fortifications of the same, and Alexander James Bongars, Knight, Counsellor of the King's Councils, President a mortier of his parliament at Metz, Intendant of Justice, Police, Finance, War and Marine of the said islands.

Whereas the circumstances of the war had determined our predecessors to permit by their ordinance of the 20th of July 1778, the introduction in the ports of this colony, of foreign vessels belonging to neutral powers, until it should be ordained to the contrary, and whereas the peace, which we have the happiness now to enjoy, ought to revive the execution of the prohibitive laws, and to induce us, for the benefit of the commerce of the mother country, to determine the time when this introduction shall cease.

We, therefore, by virtue of the powers vested in us by his Majesty, have ordered, and do order, that the said ordinance of the 20th of July 1778, shall cease to have its execution on the 1st of July of this year 1783, after which time the introduction of vessels into this colony shall take the same course which it had previous to the said ordinance, and we do not intend to admit in this respect any innovation until it shall be ordained to the contrary by his Majesty.

We do farther order, that the present ordinance be registered in the office of the Intendant, and that it be printed, read, published, and posted up wherever it shall be thought requisite.

We do request the officers of the superior council of the Cape and Port au Prince to register the same; and we do request the officers of the admiralty of their departments to procure the execution thereof.

Signed Bellicombe. Bongars.
